1. Definition of costs when entering into a trade, according to MiFID II

In accordance with MiFID II, costs are equivalent to the difference between the market value and the price offered to the client at the time of the execution. These costs are equal to the initial negative market value upon trade entry; they cover the Bank's product structuring and sales expenses, cost of equity, as well as Commerzbank Zrt.'s income. Commerzbank Zrt. does not apply any charges or commissions for the execution of orders linked to financial instruments offered under the Investment Regulations Act.

2. The relationship between performance and deal execution related costs

The purpose of this information is to provide you with an overview about the expected costs. This information may be supplemented by information about costs that will actually be incurred, with such information being provided just before the execution.

3. Explanation regarding this information

Please note that the costs shown in this information are indicative. Costs which will actually be incurred upon entering into a trade may differ from this indication; in particular, they are impacted mainly by the client classification and the actual market conditions.

The currency pairs shown below are for demonstration purposes only. The same costs apply to trades in other currency pairs.

Please note that in addition to this information under Section 40(6) of the Investment Regulations Act you are entitled to request a breakdown of the costs and related charges of financial instruments; Commerzbank Zrt. is obliged to fulfil your request pursuant to Annex II of Commission Delegated Regulation (EU) 2017/565.

Performance data disclosed without taking the underlying transaction into consideration would lead to false results.
